Content

The course examines in detail one of the major strategic decisions of a firm: its international business strategy. We analyze economic globalization presently happening in the world, and its implications for business strategy. The course adopts the perspective of economic analysis because it can provide a compact and consistent basis for evaluation and formulation of the business strategy. In addition, throughout the course many real-world examples will be introduced and explained so as to drive economic reasoning in practice, and thus allow for a better understanding of the theory. The world of international business, now more than ever, is continuously changing and, therefore, although some real examples will be obsolete in the future, the analysis and insights that are derived from them will remain.

Range of topics

Part I. Globalization

1. Globalization of markets and firms
2. International economics
3. Semiglobalization: differences among countries

Part II. Internationalization strategies

5. Global value creation: horizontal and vertical expansion
6. Adaptation
8. Arbitrage

Teaching methodology

In order to develop and evaluate the competencies stated above, this section describes the activities faced by the student throughout the course. In this regard, note that, in order to foster autonomy and individual work of students, the course will be part of Campus Extens, which incorporates the use of web platform. Using Moodle platform will allow students an online communication and distance learning with the teacher, teaching materials as electronic documents, etc.
