Context

This subject is devoted to the study of the literature produced in what is known as "the Long Eighteenth Century", that is, the influential period which in literature, culture and the arts is understood to go from the Glorious Revolution of 1688 to the Great Reform Bill of 1832. The contents of the subject will, due to the limitations imposed by time, fall roughly within the chronological boundaries of the eighteenth century, but references to the termination of the Restoration period, on the one hand, and the beginning of Romanticism, on the other, will necessarily occur. Given the prolific output of the men and women of letters during the period, students will have the chance to study works of fiction, drama and poetry, but also journalism, the essay, travel narratives and philosophy.

At the end of this subject, students will have learned to do the following:

- -- know details and understand the relationships between different works, authors and periods going beyond the mere chronological boundaries into differences of style, themes or literary conventions
- -- appreciate the poetic, dramatic, narrative, aesthetic, historical and/or cultural elements of a literary work
- -- read literature critically and produce written pieces where the student's reasoned opinions are expressed in an academic register and using terminology appropriate to the field of study
- -- make use of printed, audiovisual and virtual sources with the purpose of studying, researching or writing an essay or commentary, including a reference system, a bibliography and in general the conventions of academic writing

The learning activities of this course do not entail specific health or safety risks for the students and therefore no special protective measures are needed.

Student learning assessment

This applies to all students (UIB, Erasmus, and those under any other exchange programme).

1. Failure to submit an assessment task or to attend a test

If a student fails to hand in an assignment or to show up on the day and at the time established by the lecturer for the exams, the grade for that assignment or exam will be 0 (zero). A student will be considered "No Presentat" (NP) when they have taken a third or less of those tests that constitute the subject's assessment as specified in the "Guia Docent". In those cases where the addition of the applicable assessment percentages is higher than 5 but one or more of the assessment parts fail to meet the required criteria, the final grade will be 4'5. The dates and times of the official exams will not be altered under any circumstances, except

Resources, bibliography and additional documentation

It is essential for the correct analysis of the works that students read them in advance of the discussion in class. No specific edition of the novels is required, but it is highly advisable that students acquire a good critical edition (Penguin, Oxford, Norton, etc.): they contain useful introductions and editorial material which will be referred to in class. This is particularly relevant in the case of the works used for the written assignment. Students are required to use paper copies of the texts. Only paper copies will be allowed for consultation during a test, should they be required.
